

As part of our work with the Innovation and Transformational Leadership Network, Superintendent Gifford and Director of Teaching and Learning, Tracy Oliveira recently discussed innovation at DPS during a podcast Ray McNulty from the Successful Practices Network, a non-profit member organization committed to improving student education.

The podcast can be accessed at the following link.

Dartmouth Public Schools joined this network with a goal to expand and enhance the future focused mindset in our district. This mindset leads to instructional practices that empower students through creative and critical thinking, collaboration and communication and be successful in an ever changing world. Our work with the network is just one action step among many that are supporting our focus on innovative mindsets and personalized blended learning and project based experiences for all students.